Publications Section Expanded on Web Site

The Publications section of MCEER's web site has recently been expanded. All MCEER publications can now be accessed through an improved publications catalog. The new catalog allows users to search for publications based on their title, authors, year of publication, report number, or report type (technical report, monograph or special publication). Each publication has its own page, which lists the title, author, publication number, date of publication, National Technical Information Service (NTIS) number, price, keywords and abstracts. Some reports include additional information, such as pointers to supplementary data not included in the printed report, other sections of the web site for companion information (software, databases) or other miscellaneous, report-specific information.

If a customer wishes to purchase a publication, the order can be placed within the catalog. A detailed order form is provided which allows the customer to review the titles selected, choose shipping options and approve the final order and total. MCEER staff members Hugh Jarvis, Michael Kukla, Jane Stoye and Barbara McManus collaborated to provide the enhancements to the publications section.
